Iowa Agriculture and Rural Life:

A Bibliography of Materials Published between 1836 and 1945
INTRODUCTION

IOWA AGRICULTURE AND RURAL LIFE: A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF MATERIALS PUBLISHED BETWEEN 1836 AND 1945 was created as part of the United States Agricultural Information Network (USAIN) Preservation project. This preservation microfilming project, funded through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) and administered by the Mann Library, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY, will eventually identify and preserve agricultural and rural life literature from all 50 states.

As a participant in the project, the Iowa State University Library (ISU) joined other land-grant libraries across the nation in a cooperative effort to preserve this agrarian literature for future generations. As Nancy E. Gwinn states in A National Preservation Program for Agricultural Literature, “Much of what defines the national character of Americans, as well as the nation’s social structure, landscape, environment, and economy, is rooted in our agricultural past.” This experience is documented through the written record of agricultural societies; descriptions in gazetteers and almanacs; issues of popular and trade periodicals; censuses taken by the state; books and other texts; publications of experiment stations, extension services, and government agencies; and papers in manuscript and archival collections. The preservation of this material is critical because much of the literature was printed on poor quality paper that has become brittle and fragile over time.

The aim of the USAIN project at Iowa State University was threefold: 1) to compile a comprehensive bibliography of the titles published in Iowa between 1820–1945 that pertained to the fields of agriculture, rural economy, and rural society, 2) to rank the materials listed in the bibliography for the purposes of identifying the most significant materials to target for preservation microfilming, and 3) to preserve those targeted materials on microfilm. For Iowa, the earliest item found was for 1836. Of the 661 titles ranked, 477 were microfilmed. The microfilm is available at the Iowa State University Library, Ames, IA and the National Agricultural Library, Beltsville, MD.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many individuals contributed to the completion of this project. Fundamental to its success was the on-going support of, and the team environment fostered by, Olivia M. A. Madison, ISU Dean of Library Services. Eleanor Mathews, retired head of the Reference Department, was instrumental in launching the project. She handled the project management for the creation of the bibliography, coordinated the bibliography ranking process, and generously contributed her time and guidance through the microfilming phase. Mary Lohr, a library assistant in the Technical Services Division, helped compile the bibliography. Cynthia Dobson, Associate to the Dean, served as the initial principal investigator for the project, a role later assumed by Kris Gerhard, Assistant Director for Collections, and then, in the microfilming phase, by Olivia Madison.

Once the bibliography was compiled, individual titles were ranked according to their importance to the social, cultural, and economic history of the state of Iowa by a select panel of scholars, all well versed in the literature of Iowa agriculture and rural life. This scholarly panel included the following current or retired ISU professors: Gordon Bivens (Human Development and Family Studies), R. Douglas Hurt (History), John Pesek (Agronomy), Dorothy Schwieder (History), and James Whitaker (Agricultural History). Also part of the panel were: David Hudson (Librarian, State Historical Society of Iowa), Thomas Morain (Director, State Historical Society of Iowa), and Earl Rogers (retired University of Iowa archivist).

The microfilming phase was labor-intensive. The Reformatting Section of the Preservation Department coordinated the entire microfilming process. A number of talented and dedicated student employees, most notably Lindsay McElderry, played key roles in preparing materials for filming and in inspecting the completed films. Joyce Bahrenfus, Library Associate, and Hilary Seo, Head of the Preservation Department, also contributed their expertise to the oversight of this phase. Wayne Pedersen, Head of Interlibrary Loan, searched for and located numerous items not in the ISU Library’s collections. Heritage Microfilm of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the firm awarded the filming contract, did an outstanding job under very tight time constraints.

Other ISU Library staff made significant long-term contributions to various phases of the project: Julie Schubert, a library assistant in the Technical Services Division, handled almost all of the cataloging for the project; Tanya Zanish-Belcher, Head of the Special Collections Department, and Lori Osmus, Head of the Cataloging Department, provided guidance and expertise throughout; and Maureen Hyland-Carver, a systems analyst in the Information Technology Division, provided technical expertise during the creation of the bibliographic database and with subsequent database applications. Many others shared their time and talents throughout the project. The contributions of all of these individuals are deeply appreciated.

We are genuinely grateful for the leadership shown by Cornell University (the lead institution for the overall USAIN Preservation project) and for the sage advice of Mary Ochs and Joy Paulson who coordinated the multi-institutional project. We also appreciate the guidance we received from Dan Lech at the National Agricultural Library (NAL). The Iowa State University Library is pleased to have had the opportunity to be part of this pivotal NEH-funded project.
IOWA AGRICULTURE AND RURAL LIFE: A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF MATERIALS PUBLISHED BETWEEN 1836 AND 1945

A consolidated bibliography for the national USAIN project is being produced by Michigan State University. Once this searchable bibliography is completed, the e-Library at Iowa State University (http://www.lib.iastate.edu/) will link to it and provide descriptive information about the Iowa USAIN project.

The following printed bibliography contains brief bibliographic entries, keywords, and, if microfilmed, a note to that effect. It is arranged by author/title; titles with no author appear at the beginning of the bibliography followed by those items with authors. Both groups are in alphabetical order.
